The readings for the following Sunday will be used.

When the group has gathered, recall that Jesus is already present as we gather in God's name and will be present in a new way, to each and to all, when the scriptures are read.

Invite all to a minute of silent prayer, as they open their hearts to God and pray for one another.

Someone reads the Gospel followed by a brief time of silent reflection.

Invite people to repeat a phrase or a word in the reading that spoke to them.

Another person reads the Gospel again.

Invite people to share what the reading or part of it said to them. Remember, we are not asking for general commentary or explanation, but a personal response.

If there is still time, repeat this process with the first reading, explaining that it has been chosen to echo themes in the Gospel.

If there is still time, repeat this process with the second reading for the day.

Close the meeting with the Lord's Prayer.
